Latvian-Lithuanian Cross-border Cooperation Programme 2021-2027 orientations/hints for new projects

- Consider improving local transport services across the border;
- Explore and address the legal and administrative obstacles in the area of disaster management services. Further examine ways to have joint emergency services (i.e. how to reduce the obstacles which have been identified);
- Promote cross-border prevention measures, such as common actions to improve the knowledge base, preparation and implementation of disaster risk management strategies, awareness-raising campaigns, flood and forest fires protection and prevention infrastructure, networks, management of land, forests and rivers, etc.;
- Establish common services / introduce shared services in healthcare sector to improve accessibility on both sides of the border;
- Improve information on services available on the other side of the border. The policy fields of particular interest are i.a.: higher education, emergency services, health services, child-care provision, management of natural resources.

Latvian-Lithuanian Cross-border Cooperation Programme 2021-2027 GENERAL/GOVERNANCE ORIENTATIONS FOR ALL AREAS/TOPICS

- Identify key obstacles to, and potential for a cross-border labour market, health care, transport connections, use of languages, etc. (the Cross-Border Review may be used as a starting point);
- Bring the relevant actors together (e.g. authorities at national/ regional/ local levels, enterprises, users, etc.) to facilitate the process of finding ways to reduce identified obstacles and exploit the potential (e.g. by organizing experts' meetings, pilot projects, etc.);
- Establish working groups with all the parties concerned with obstacles identified in order to define the bottlenecks;
- Design more strategic approach of the monitoring committee to handle the programme in the view of the best possible benefit for the whole border region / prevent “mirror projects”;

- Establish / participate to a cooperation mechanism with authorities responsible for implementation of the Latvian and Lithuanian mainstream ESIF programmes. This coordination implies exchange of information and cooperation and should happen at all stages: planning (e.g. designing complementarities), implementation (e.g. building on synergies) and communication (showing the benefits for the citizens and the region);
- Support capacity building measures for beneficiaries to realise projects effectively through consultations and mentoring throughout the whole duration of the project / reinforce project assistants / introduce training for mentors - “coaching a coach”;
- Establish mechanisms to finance smaller projects or people-to-people projects that make a strong contribution to the social and civil cohesion of the cross-border region;
- Liaise with existing cross-border organisations to profit from their potential in establishing contacts between partners and the communication about the programme;
- Identify the areas where important cross-border data is missing and support projects that would fill the gap at the latest by 2027 (e.g. in cooperation with national statistical offices, by supporting regional data portals etc.).
